The Dark Knight Rises premiere

Yesterday saw the New York premier of the highly anticipated, The Dark Knight Rises, Batman film.

All of the stars were out in their finery and the gents did not let us down on the dapper suit front. Christian Bale, Tom Hardy and Joesph Gordon-Levitt were the three gents that impressed the most.

Below you can see all the cast together at the premier last night and you can see they were all looking their best.

Tom Hardy, Christian Bale, Morgan Freeman and Christopher Nolan have all opted for darker suits , which are more typical of a formal occasion - as they look very smart in the evening. Gary Oldman and Joesph Gordon-Levitt have bucked the trend and gone for lighter suits . Gary is wearing an almost bronze suit with a light sheen and Joesph is wearing a light grey suit with red accessories.

I particularly like Joesph Gordon-Levitt suit that he wore, I really like the red accessories he has gone for that contrast the suit.

The two-piece is very well fitting and he has worn a white shirt and patent black shoes.

Christian Bale's suit is quite different to Joesph's (above). He has gone for a dark number, which is more typical for a formal occasion like a premier. He has paired it with a white shirt and black silk tie .

The two-piece even features a ticket pocket, which is becoming quite a popular extra feature on the modern suit. Bale's jacket also features peaked lapels, which will make his shoulders appear broader.

Tom Hard, like Christian, has gone for a darker more formal suit.

Tom's suit is a two-piece and has a notched lapel. He has paired the suit with a stark white shirt and dark grey silk tie .

The film is released on July 20th and is already glowing from the reviews - so it is likely to be the film to see this summer.
